Friday, July 8, 1881.

As an evidence of the increase in business throughout the State and the amount of work done in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, it is stated that the fees from that office paid by the Deputy Secretary into the State Treasury for the quarter ending May 31, 1881, were within a few dollars of $8,000, the average amount heretofore being less than $3,000 per quarter.

The tower clock of the First Presbyterian Church, Newark, N. J., lately stopped. The town time-keeper found in the wheels of the clock a tangled mass of hay, twine, grass, cotton and feathers, amounting to nearly half a peck. A pair of birds had entered the tower through a hole in the dial and attempted to build a nest in the machinery of the clock. The slow revolution of the wheels tore their work to pieces, and they kept on reconstructing it until they stopped the wheels.

It bodes no good to the country that the Republican press shows such an unhesitating willingness to make common cause with the friends of repudiation in Virginia. The whole strength of the Mahone movement is based upon its sordid appeal to the advantage to be derived by a refusal to pay a certain proportion of the State indebtedness. The success of the Readjuster ticket is tantamount to an act of repudiation, and if the Republican party deliberately assists in this consummation it cannot hope to escape the consequences.—Phila. Record.

Resistance to the new prohibitory laws of Kansas has gone so far that while juries in the cities refuse to convict liquor sellers, even upon the clearest evidence, in Atchison the common Council, with the co-operation of its presiding officer, the Mayor, has adopted an ordinance providing for the granting of licences to taverns and saloons This action was taken in express ridicule and defiance of the prohibitory constitutional amendment and the laws based upon it. The temperance men have since then had a mass meeting, and call upon the Mayor to resign, while Governor St. John threatened to call out the militia and put the laws into execution by force of arms. All this because the population of the cities is not willing to be deprived of its beer by the rural population's temperance predictions.

THE ATTACK ON THE PRESIDENT.

Last Saturday morning the wires flashed the report to all parts of the country, that the President had been assassinated. Fifty millions of people were filled with horror and dismay, on hearing that, for the second time in the life of the nation, the hand of an assassin had been raised against a Chief Magistrate.

The first statement, that the President was dead, proved to be untrue and a general sense of relief was felt, although it was soon known that his wounds were dangerous. Since then the President with strong will and vigorous frame has struggled against disease and, it is hoped, successfully.

Never before has there been such a strong and spontaneous outburst of sympathy for a high official. From all parts of the country and from abroad have come messages of condolence and denunciation of the assassin. On Sunday last prayers were offered in hundreds of churches and in thousands of homes throughout the land, for the speedy recovery of the stricken President.

The dastard who fired the shots, is an irredeemable scoundrel, whose life for years has been of the most detestable character. A petty swindler, hotel thief and adventurer, who preyed upon the community and was known to the police as a worthless wanderer.

Although there seems to be no grounds for the assertion that he is the instrument of a conspiracy, his own words, written and spoken, prove that his mad act was the outgrowth of the faction fight in the Republican party. He declared that he shot Garfield because his administration was ruining the country, and rests assured that he will be protected by the stalwarts.

The people have grown very sick of stalwartism, and this should put an end to the aspirations of Conkling and his followers. Certain it is, that hereafter all that pertains to stalwartism will have an unsavory odor, and will keep alive the memory of the crime attempted last Saturday. No sane person can for a moment associate Conkling, personally, with the horrid event, but the fact that the assassin proclaimed himself "a stalwart of the stalwarts," shows that his deed was the result of a distorted view of the party struggle which threatens to rend the Republican party in twain.

The Susquehanna River.

The project of improving the Susquehanna river so as to make it navigable for vessels, has been revived again says the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin;

"The project of improving the Susquehanna river so as to make it navigable for vessels has been revived again. We do not know how many times the subject has been agitated in the past hundred years, but it would take some time to count them up. The Pennsylvania canal system had its earliest conception in a plan for making the Susquehanna navigable, and the matter has been talked of at intervals ever since. It is a source of chagrin to the utilitarian Yankee mind to see a stream of such magnificent proportions lying idle because it has not water enough in dry weather to float a saw log; but the enormous expense that would be necessary has prevented any efforts to make it useful except to feed a canal along its banks. The bottom is too rocky to be dredged, and the only way to make the river navigable would be either to blast out a channel for a hundred miles or more, or else to build an embankment in mid stream, to run along its course and to force all its water into half or less than half the area it now occupies. The latter plan would be the cheaper, but would be open to the objection that much of the work would have to be renewed after every freshet It is to be feared that the Susquehanna must be left to itself as an impracticable stream. Its mission evidently is to be picturesque and nothing else, and it is in this aspect that it must be utilized, if at all. A ride along its banks is one of the finest excursions in the United States, and the river itself forms a prominent feature of all the views in the summer excursion guides relating to its section. In this way it attracts travelers and so can be made to "pay" to a slight extent; but aside from this, Pennsylvania can only boast of it as one of the biggest, handsomest and most utterly useless rivers on the continent."

ASSASSINATION.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD SHOT.

The Assassin a Worthless Scoundrel Named Charles J. Guiteau.

DESCRIPTION OF THE TRAGEDY.

The President Still Alive and Hopes Entertained of his Recovery.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.

The President was shot, at twenty minutes past nine o'clock on Saturday morning, at the Baltimore and Potomac railroad station in Washington. He had gone there to take the train for New York, where his family were to join him for a trip to New England. Secretaries Hunt and Windom, Postmaster General James and others of the party had already taken their seats in the car. The President had just alighted from his carriage and was passing through the ladies' room on his way to the train, arm in arm with Secretary Blaine. When when about half way across the ladies' room two shots were heard in quick succession. The President reeled and Secretary Blaine rushed forward after a short, thick set man who carried an old California pistol in his hand. The man was seized by two officers. A crowd had by this time gathered around the President, who was lying on his side on the floor. He was taken up stairs and a surgeon summoned One ball had entered the back of the right side, between the hip and the kidney.

It was about ten o'clock when he was carried to the White House. Guards were at once established at the gates and, later companies from the Arsenal were picketing the grounds.

At the White House after removing the clothing, it was discovered that the President had not been wounded in the arm, although a bullet had passed through his sleeve. The report of the arm wound was called out by the tattered sleeve and the fact that his hand was covered with blood, which was due to his having pressed his hand against his side when wounded there. Upon falling he vomited, and his hand swinging around threw blood into the ejected matter. It has since been discovered that he vomited no blood.

After the President realized that he had been seriously hurt his first thought was for his family. "My poor wife and children," he exclaimed when upon opening his eyes he saw Mr. Blaine bending over him and other members of the Cabinet, who had been hurriedly summoned from the train by Colonel Jamieson, who had charge of the transportation and who immediately after the shooting ran down the depot platform with the startling cry. "The President has been shot." Surgeons were at once summoned. The President evinced no distress while waiting at the depot and on the way to the White House in the ambulance he was quite cheerful. He had not then begun to suffer much pain.

The ride to the White House was as fast as the ambulance horses could go. A detail of mounted police accompanied it, a crowd of people running behind. The White House gates were closed behind the ambulance and the crowd shut out. Officers lifted the President from the ambulance to the front entrance. The loss of blood had then somewhat weakened him and he was pale and haggard. He was carried to the bedroom on the south side of the building on the second floor adjoining the library and in which Mrs. Garfield passed her recent severe illness. When placed in bed he soon grew stronger, and upon learning from Dr. Bliss that he had been dangerously hurt his thoughts again reverted to his family, and the first message that went from the White House was addressed to his wife at his dictation, in which he gently informed her that he had been hurt, and with a message of love urged her to return. Colonel Ingersoll joined the Cabinet at the White House soon after the President reached there. He saw the President and left him encouraged to hope that his strong physique would overcome the effects of the wound. Sir Edward Thornton called at about the same time and sent his condolences to the President.

The President realized that his condition was growing worse and throughout the afternoon inquired often of tidings from his family. Judge Advocate General Swaim, who was accompanying Mrs. Garfield from Long Branch, sent advices of their progress as often as practicable, and just before the 4 o'clock bulletin a telegraph came from him announcing that at 3:35 the party were at Wilmington and that the train would be rushed through without stopping. It was thought it would arrive shortly after 5. Dr. Norris, one of the physicians, shook his head at this information, and said he feared the President would die before that. It had been discovered that the ball had penetrated the liver.

From 4 o'clock on, the President's condition grew worse and his solicitude for his family increased. The pulse had reached 140 and he was losing strength At 6:45, when he was sinking rapidly, the sound of carriage wheels on the south drive aroused him. Presently he closed his eyes and when he opened them he looked upon his wife and daughter at his bedside, each holding a hand and with their faces bent tenderly over him. He smiled, pressed their hands and again closed his eyes. In a little while he opened them again and spoke kindly. He had become so weak by this time that Mrs. Garfield was requested to retire, fearing that her continued presence might be injurious. She did so, but in a few moments, when the physicians concluded that the case was hopeless, they removed their objections to her presence, and therefore she scarcely left him until just before he lost consciousness.

At the White House the scenes were the saddest of all the day. Secretary Blaine walked the library floor from noon until evening, with leaden eyes and bloodless face. Upon him more than any one else the blow seemed to have fallen. The other members of the Cabinet sat in the consultation room with anxious, hard-lined faces.

As the afternoon wore on and the President's solicitude to see his family became known there were many prayers that he might at least be spared that long The party was expected at 6:30. At that hour Attorney-General MacVeagh descended to the south portico to await them. He stood there erect as though bravely determined to face what might come. The train failed to arrive promptly and Mr. MacVeagh's courage drooped. At 6 o'clock he was joined by James and Harry Garfield, the President's sons, Postmaster General James and Mrs. James. Mr. MacVeagh sought to isolate himself. He had evidently taken more than he wished to face and as the time for facing it drew near he was utterly undone. The approach of the carriages up the drive took him to the bottom of the steps leading to the portico, and gave Mrs. Garfield his hand as she stepped from the carriage, but he had no words for her and was relieved when her boy Harry took her in his arms and led her up the steps. She was very much overcome and leaned heavily against him. When the portico was reached Harry stopped and kissed her, and then they went in together, Miss Mollie Garfield was led into the house by her brother James, Mrs. Rockwell, who was one of the party, by General Swain, and Miss Rockwell by Colonel Corbin.

Mrs. Garfield, although still weak from her recent illness and shocked by the suddenness of the grief which had come to her, behaved with a courage and self-control equal to those of her husband. Not only has she not given way to the terror and grief which she necessarily feels but she has been constantly giving efficient aid so far as it has been in her power to the attending physicians. While she was out the President asked Dr. Bliss if there was any hope for him. Dr. Bliss replied that he never lost hope.

"No," responded the President cheerily, "while there is life there is hope."

At eight o'clock a consultation of physicians was held and an unanimous conclusion reached that the President could not survive the night. One of the ribs had been fractured by the pistol ball and the liver pierced. There was however a decided improvement within the next hour.

The President passed a comparatively comfortable night. He slept considerably, but was on one or two occasions annoyed by pains in the feet and ankles, the usual accompaniment, Dr. Bliss says, of a wound of the character received. While awake he was conscious and perfectly calm. He showed a disposition at times to converse and evinced some curiosity as to the effect the attempt to murder him had produced on the public. He asked about the would-be murderer at times, wondering what had caused the man to shoot him. "I never did him any injury," said the President; "why should he have wanted to kill me?"

During Sunday the President's condition remained for the most part, unchanged. He appeared to be somewhat better until a late hour when he became restless and complained of pain in his feet. On Monday morning he was able to partake of food and seemed stronger.

The President was comparatively quiet and free from pain on Monday night and during Tuesday. So marked was the improvement that Dr. Bliss, the physician in charge went to his home, for the first time since the shooting. The belief was strong that the President would recover.

The disease from which the President suffers is peritonitis, which is inflammation of the membrane that lines the whole abdominal cavity and covers all its contents. The peritoneum, the anatomical name of the membrane referred to is very extensive, and as inflammation of one part of it almost necessarily involves the whole, the danger needs only to be mentioned to be seen. One of the symptoms of the disease is tympanites, or gas generated by the inflammation, which, having no means of exit, as that generated in the stomach has, distends the abdomen until it is sometimes as tense as a drum-head. It is to remedy this that Dr. Simms telegraphed from Paris recommending a puncture of the abdomen. The President's pains are relieved by the hypodermic administration of morphine, and consequently he is drowsy and sometimes unconscious.

The President was comparatively comfortable on Wednesday. He took nourishment and seemed to improve steadily. No unfavorable change was noted during the day. His pulse was still high, but has got below 100. Though the President is not yet out of danger his physicians feel much encouraged. At this writing there seems to be reasonable grounds for the belief that he will recover.

THE ASSASSIN.

Charles J. Guiteau is about 40 years of age and was born in Ann Arbor, Mich. He is short of stature, has a sallow face on which grows a straggling beard. He is a man utterly without character, a persistent office seeker, and a swindler. Numerous hotels and boarding houses in New York and Washington have unpaid bills against him. In 1872 he was expelled from the Calvary Baptist church, New York, for dishonesty and disgraceful behavior. In 1874 he was in jail in New York for obtaining money under false pretenses. Capt. Kealy of the New York police force says that Guiteau was one of a gang of professional hotel thieves. There seems to be no evidence whatever that he is insane. He was perfectly cool when arrested and acknowledged his guilt without any attempt at evasion. In his pocket was found the following letter.

JULY 2, 1881.

"To the White House:

"The President's tragic death was a sad necessity, but it will unite the Republican party and save the republic. A human life is of small value. During the war thousands of brave boys went down without a tear.

"I presume that the President was a Christian and that he will be happier in Paradise than here. It will be no worse for Mrs Garfield, dear soul, to part with her husband this way than by natural death. He is liable to go at any time any way. I had no ill-will towards the President. His death was a political necessity.

"I am a lawyer, a theologian and a politician. I am a stalwart of the stalwarts. I was with General Grant and the rest of our men in New York during the canvass. I have some papers for the press which I shall leave with Byron Andrews and his co-journalists, at 1,420 New York avenue, where all the reporters can see them. I am going to the jail. CHARLES GUITEAU."

The following letter was found on the streets soon after Guiteau's arrest, with the letter unsealed and addressed. "Please deliver at once."

"To General Sherman or his first assistant in charge of the War Department,

"TO GENERAL SHERMAN: I have just shot the President. I shot him several times, as I wished him to go as easily as possible. His death was a political necessity. I am a lawyer, theologian and politician. I am a stalwart of the stalwarts. I was with General Grant and the rest of our men in New York during the canvass. I am going to the jail. Please order out your troops and take possession of the jail at once.

"Very respectfully,
CHARLES GUITEAU."

Guiteau had been awaiting the President at the depot for about half an hour, during which he stepped into a retiring room and loaded his pistol.

Officer Kearney, who was stationed at the depot when the shooting occured, said that he had noticed Guiteau acting suspiciously in the ladies' room and had thought of sending him elsewhere when the President's carriage drove up. The President asked Kearney how much time he had. Kearney replied "ten minutes." "Then," said Kearney, "the President got out of his carriage and came into the ladies' waiting room. I had just turned my back when I heard two pistol shots in rapid succession. I ran around to the B street door of the ladies entrance room: just as I reached there I saw the prisoner coming out. We met on the step: I grabbed him and told him I must put him under arrest "All right," said he. "I did it and will go to jail for it. I am a stalwart and Arthur will be President." I then took the prisoner out into the waiting room, and the private watchman and myself carried him over to headquarters. On the way over he gave me his card. Police headquarters were not a block from the depot. Upon being searched the so called White House letter and a letter addressed to General Sherman were found upon him. Guiteau had left at the news-stand at the depot a bundle of papers, including a letter similar to the White House letter, addressed to Byron Andrews, correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, for the information of the press. The documents including a pamphlet of a stalwart speech reviewing Grant's career, said to have been delivered by Guiteau in New York last August. There was also a lot of papers supposed to be descriptive of the condition of Guiteau's mind from day to day. District Attorney Corkhill has the papers and will not let them be seen at present, but he says they are a queer compound of religion and politics. After a short detention at police headquarters the prisoner was removed to jail in a close carriage in which were seated Lieutenants Austin and Eckloff, detective McElfresh and officer Lewis. Guiteau talked freely and said what he had done was for the good of the Republican party and the country. He had nothing against Garfield, but wanted Arthur to be President.

The fact that Guiteau, who had not money enough to pay his board and washing bills, was enabled to pay $11 for a pistol and $2 to a hackman naturally suggests an inquiry as to the source from which his money came. It is said that the officers of the Government have evidence to show that Guiteau was accompanied to the depot by another person. Who that person was cannot be ascertained. Whether the man was insane or not there can be no doubt that the crime was coolly planned and deliberately executed. Guiteau over two weeks ago visited the jail to make an examination of it and was denied admittance by the Warden. He saw that it was safe enough to defend him from the hands of an infuriated mob. Immediately after the shooting he expressed great anxiety to be taken to the jail immediately to escape the fury of the crowd. The letter he sent to General Sherman requesting that officer to send troops to the jail at once, evidently for no other purpose than to defend him. A prominent lawyer of the city said to-day "Insanity does not contemplate the risk and coolly plan to avoid it. Insanity is not capable of such accurate calculation of danger, for the danger of being mobbed for such an act is the chief one, and of so systematically planning to escape it—no, sir. That man is as sane as you or I, and he is legally responsible for his act."

It is said that intimations have been given of late that the President might be attacked, and unusual precautions have been taken to prevent such an event.

Guiteau maintains his coolness and expresses no fear for himself as he says the Stalwarts will take care of him. The fellow is not insane, but is irredeemably vicious and utterly worthless. A lunatic named Daniel McNamara appeared in Washington on Tuesday and said he had come to kill Secretary Blaine. He was sent to the insane asylum. He was harmless and carried no weapon.

"Forced by my political connections into public life, my sufferings were intensified by the comments of those who saw my face and head covered with scrofulous humor," said a gentleman recently cured by Cuticura Remedies.

TWO IMPORTANT ACTS.

The following bills passed by the legislature have received the signature of the Governor and are now laws.

To regulate the holding of and to prevent frauds in the primary elections of the several political parties in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

That from and after the passage of this act it shall be lawful and it is hereby made the duties of the judges, inspectors and clerks or other officers of the primary elections, meetings or caucus held for the purpose of nominating candidates for state, city or county offices within the commonwealth of Pennsylvania before entering upon the discharge of their duties, severally to take and subscribe to an oath or affirmation in the presence of each other in form as follows, namely: "I (A. B.) do ——that I will as judge, inspector or clerk (as the case may be) at the ensuing election, impartially and faithfully perform my duties in accordance with the laws and constitution of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and in accordance with the rules and regulations adopted by the party of the county of—for the government of the said primary elections, meetings or caucus to the best of my judgment and abilities." The oath or affirmation shall be first administered to the judge by one of the inspectors, then the judge so qualified shall administer the oath or affirmation to the inspectors and clerks and may administer the oath to any elector offering to vote as to his qualifications to vote at such election.

Section 2.—If any judge, inspector, clerk or other officer of a primary election as aforesaid shall presume to act in such capacity before the taking and subscribing to the oath or affirmation required by this act he shall, on conviction, be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars; and if any judge, inspector, clerk or other officer, when in the discharge of his duties as such, shall wilfully disregard or violate the provisions of any rule duly made by the said —— party of —— county for the government of the primary elections of the party he shall, on conviction, be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars, and if any judge or inspector of a primary election as aforesaid, shall knowingly reject the vote of any person entitled to vote under the rules of the said —— party or shall knowingly receive the vote of any person or persons not qualified as aforesaid, shall on conviction be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars, and if any judge, inspector, clerk or other officer of a primary election as aforesaid shall be guilty of any wilful fraud in the discharge of his duties by destroying or defacing ballots, adding ballots to the poll, other than those lawfully voted, by stuffing the ballot box, by false counting, by making false returns, or by any act or thing whatsoever, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisoned not exceeding one year or either at the discretion of the court.

All acts or parts of acts of assembly, inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed, except in counties or cities where special acts are in force for the same purpose; provided however, In such cases where the provisions of this act are accepted, the special acts shall be null and void; provided further, That the provisions of this act shall entail no expense to the county or cities adopting it.

Approved June 29, 1881.

HIS ANSWER.

They tell it on one of our citizens who was ambling toward his place of business, that he was approached by a lady acquaintance of the family, who said: "Mr.——, I hear you are suffering from rheumatism, is it so?" "Rumor 'tis m'm" said our citizen of few words, as he proceeded on his way. Over in Chicopee our neighbors and friends have been having quite a time with rheumatism: but according to receipts received by our representative the flurry is over, as the sure antidote has been used and thus commented upon: Mr. C. N. Manchester, Cutler street, says relative to his experience: I have used St. Jacob's Oil and esteem it the best remedy for rheumatism I have ever tried. It acts like magic, and I cannot over-estimate its value, when I pronounce it the greatest rheumatic remedy of the age.

The Best Part of Man's Life.

It has been my lot for many years to assist in making laws for the government of this country, but the more I consider the problems of social and political arrangement, and the forces that most influence and control it, the less do I find the statute books have to do in the regulation of the actual lives and occupations of the people. I mean how few of these occupations which engross the greater portion of our time, cause our labors and anxious considerations, in which we are most deeply interested, spend most of our money upon and bestow our powers in every way, are those to which any statute law or constitution compels us. The best part of man's life is in the world of his natural affections, and that realm has laws of its own that neither know nor heed king, kaiser nor president, nor reichstags nor congresses, and are deaf even to the voices of popular majorities, but heed and obey rather the gentle voice of woman and the cry of helpless and feeble childhood.—Senator Thomas F. Bayard.

We agree with our esteemed cotemporary that to write for "a paper which is known to be below the Republican in circulation" would be humiliating, especially as that is the best point the paper has. We earnestly hope that such a disaster may not befall us. Just now we are several hundred copies ahead, with promise of more in the future.

Few of the thousands of people who travel daily on the cars have any idea what an ordinary passenger car costs, and the wildest guesses are often heard, ranging from $500 to an indefinite number of thousands. The average price of a passenger car is about $4,500. Pullman cars average from $6,000 to $10,000; a locomotive costs $11,000 to $12,000, while an ordinary freight or box car costs about $625.

There are two additional cases of small pox—Mrs. Van Horn, who lives on Railroad street and a little girl named Kahler, living on the same street Neither are considered severe. James Wolf, who died on Sunday morning, was the first and thus far the only one to succumb to the disease. He was buried on Sunday night. No danger of an epidemic exists and the physicians only counsel the exercise of ordinary precautions.

When the excellence of rice as a diet is fully understood its use will be more frequent and of daily occurrence in every household. At this season of the year especially, it may properly be classed as superior to any of the cereals which are in such general use for the morning and midday meals. No other food is so easy of digestion, and at its present cost it is cheaper than potatoes, oat-meal or grain-grits of any kind.

One can scarcely help wondering why it is necessary to have a Chief Engineer and assistants of the fire department, if the duties of these officers are to be performed by marshals whenever a parade takes place. Who ever heard of a marshal to direct the marching of a regiment when the colonel and his staff were in command? The ordinary way of conducting such matters would have avoided considerable confusion on the Fourth.

At a meeting of the Town Council held on Wednesday evening, an ordinance relative to the public health was passed. It will be found elsewhere in this issue. A Board of Health consisting of I. W. Hartman, William Rabb, and John K. Lockard was appointed and rules prescribed to prevent the spread of dangerous diseases. The attention of our readers is especially called to this ordinance, which was passed in the interests of the citizens of Bloomsburg, and not to create alarm.

Resolved, That the thanks of this company be tendered to the citizens of the town for their patronage, and to all persons who contributed in any way to the success of the late festival. And we especially desire to recognize the valuable services of the young ladies who kindly consented to assist at the ice cream and flower tables, and whose presence and efforts added so much to the pleasure and profit of the occasion.

The Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society has issued its list of premiums for its 28th annual exhibition, to be held at Pittsburgh, in September and October, in conjunction with the 5th annual exhibition of the Pittsburg Exposition Society. The Society offers for competition larger prizes for the display of live stock than any other institution in the United States. The entire list of premiums is exceedingly liberal, and the indications are that the exhibition will be one of the largest and best ever held. Pittsburgh is making great preparations for the event. The premium list can be had by writing to Secretary D. W. Seiler, at the office in Harrisburg.

The dangers to be apprehended from coal oil lamps have been frequently enumerated and plans of avoidance suggested. The following simple rules can be relied on as infallible: Always keep a lamp full of oil. Never allow it to get more than half empty, as the space above fills with gas, which is easily ignited, especially if the oil is not thoroughly rectified. Turn the flame down by hand as far as you can, then give a quick, strong puff down the chimney, instantly extinguishing the small remainder of the flame. Never blow a full flame down the chimney, as it may be blown into the gas in the lamp and cause an explosion.

On Tuesday afternoon last, Willie Bowers, aged about ten years, who lives near the Irondale railroad below Third street was terribly burned by the explosion of a coal oil can. He had been left at home by his mother, with instructions to have the fire ready for supper. When the supper hour approached, the fire was low and Willie endeavored to start a blaze by pouring coal oil from a can containing nearly half a gallon. There was an instant explosion, and the burning oil was scattered in all directions, setting fire to the boy's clothes. He ran out of the house with garments ablaze, and was saved from death by some of the neighbors, who wrapped a piece of carpet about him and extinguished the flames. The boy's body is badly burned and one of his wrists is so seriously wounded that it is feared amputation will be necessary. The physician in attendance thinks the boy's life can be saved, though he is suffering greatly from his injuries.

THE FOURTH IN BLOOMSBURG.

The one hundred and fifth anniversary of the Nation's Birthday was ushered in on Monday morning with promises of a bright day. At an early hour the streets became animated by the appearance of numbers of firemen in uniform, and at half past seven a large crowd had gathered at the depot to welcome the guests of the fire department. On the up train came the Friendship, Good Will and Washington companies from Danville, the former with their handsome steamer, and the others with hose carriages, all prettily trimmed. On the down train came the Fearless, of Berwick, and their hose carriage. The visitors were escorted up town, and taken to their quarters, the Friendship company of this town entertaining the Washington of Danville, the Rescue having the Good Will, and the Winonas the Friend-ship, of Danville, and the Fearless, of Berwick. Lunches were served in the halls of the different companies, and then for a couple of hours the visitors were at liberty to do as they pleased. At ten o'clock, a game of base ball took place between the Hazleton and Bloom clubs, an account of which appears in another column. At noon the guests dined at the Exchange and Central Hotels, and shortly after one o'clock, the procession was formed on Main street, under the direction of William H Gilmore, chief marshal, assisted by J. C. Knittle and W. H. Jacoby, all mounted. The line was formed in the following order:

Chief Marshal.
Chief Engineers and Assistants.
Bloomsburg Cornet Band.
Friendship No. 1, of Bloomsburg with carriage.
Friendship Engine, drawn by four horses.
Washington Hose Company, of Danville with Carriage.
Afton Cornet Band.
Rescue No. 2, of Bloomsburg, with carriage.
Rescue Hook & Ladder Truck, drawn by four horses.
Good Will, of Danville, with carriage.
Fuge's Cornet Band.
Friendship Steamer, of Danville, drawn by four horses.
Friend-hip Company, of Danville.
Fearless Drum Corps.
Fearless Engine Company, of Berwick, with carriage.
Winona Fire Company, of Bloomsburg, with carriage.

This company has not yet received uniforms, except caps, and therefore appeared in black frock coats, white vests and black pants.

The procession was closed by the Fantastics, a motley crew, headed by a Calithumpian band, and drawing the little engine, formerly used by the old Rescue company. They caused a great deal of merriment.

The line of march was down Main to Market, down Market to Sixth, counter march to Main, up Main to East, down East to Sixth, down Sixth to Iron, up Iron to Fifth, down Fifth to Centre, up Centre to Third, down Third to West, out West to Main, up Main to East, and counter-march, when the procession was dismissed. Considering the intense heat, the march was altogether too long, and it is remarkable that no cases of sunstroke occurred

This was the largest and most imposing Firemen's parade ever witnessed here, and all the companies made a very fine appearance. There were about four hundred men in line.

Owing to the critical condition of the President of the United States, it was thought best to omit the sack and barrow races, and all other like amusements that had been arranged for the day. The committee were unable to procure a speaker, and Governor Hoyt and Attorney-General Palmer were not present, owing to previous engagements. There was but little disorder on the streets, considering the crowd present, and altogether the day passed very pleasantly.

Moyer Bros. are offering their large stock of pocket books for ladies and gentlemen at prices below cost. Take advantage of the opportunity to buy first class goods at the lowest possible rates.

On the evening of the Fourth, Mr. F. P. Drinker afforded pleasure to a large number of people by a very creditable pyrotechnic display at the reservoir. There were some very beautiful rockets, roman candles, mines, &c., and an exceedingly fine effect was produced by firing a long train of powder, on which at intervals were huge cannon crackers that exploded with stunning reports. Mr. Drinker deserved and received many thanks for the only exhibition of fireworks made during the evening.

A well-contested game of base ball was played here on the Fourth of July, between the home club and the one from Hazleton. As a rule the innings were interesting. Breslin, the catcher of the Hazleton nine, played admirably. The umpire, Chris. Miller, of Hazleton, was not satisfactory, and his decisions gave rise to much protesting. The game resulted in favor of the visiting club by a score of 11 to 6. The following are the names of the players:

Some unknown but clear-headed philosopher says that the most unfortunate day in the career of any man, is the day on which he fancies there is some better way to make money than to earn it. From that feeling spring the many extravagant and visionary plans which are indulged in for the purpose of gaining a livelihood without labor. When a man becomes thoroughly infected with this feeling, he is ready to adopt any means for the accomplishment of his object, and, if he is foiled in his efforts, upon the breast wave which he has already mounted, and in full view, is temptation to crime, to shield him from the disgrace which he thinks must inevitably follow in the wake of defeat. To those he yields, and the first he realizes he finds himself the violator of the law, and a criminal in the eyes of the community and the inmate of a prison, waiting trial, all brought about for the want of a little manly firmness in the outset of life to prompt him to choose an avocation where the penny earned would bring with it its sure reward.

ORANGEVILLE ITEMS.

The store building of D. K. Sloan is being renovated, and will be very attractive in appearance.

The new M. E. church is now under roof, and will be completed by September.

Extensive repairs and improvements are now being made on the Union church.

William Robbins, H. Low and A. Keller are building new houses.

A disgraceful scene occurred on our streets last Saturday night. Who were the young rowdies and where did they get their whiskey?

The graduating exercises at the Academy took place on Thursday forenoon, of last week. The following persons stood a creditable examination and graduated with honor: John J. Heisler, Della Patterson, Maggie U. Conner, Ida M. Laubach, Jessie S. Fisher, Tilghman Lauer, Carrie C. Decker, James E. Robbins, Mary H. Welsh and J. Wallace Oman. Their graduating addresses were good in quality and well delivered. In connection with the exercises, a number of gifts and prizes were distributed. The Anniversary address on the "The Classics" was delivered in the Union church in the afternoon by Rev. A. Henry, of Williamsport. This address was good and was appreciated by the patrons of education.

Last Tuesday afternoon, Sheriff Ent offered for sale at the Court House, the roadway, roadbed and appurtenances, corporate franchises and rights of the North and West Branch Railroad Company. There was quite a crowd of interested spectators present, and the bidding was lively. The first bid was $400,000 and this was increased by $5,000 at a time until $650,000 had been reached, when bids of $500 were made up to $700,000. This was made by Hon. Henry W. Palmer and was the highest. He gave the names of the purchasers as Charles Parrish, Thomas Beaver, Charles R. Buckalew and Henry W. Palmer The purchasers, stockholders and officers of the road were extremely reticent and no information could be obtained as to who were the real purchasers. It is not probable that the four gentlemen named bought the road on their own account. Messrs Parrish and Beaver are directors of the Reading R. R. and it was thought by some that this company was mainly interested. There has been much mystery connected with the North and West Branch R. R. and there is nothing known of the transactions of late, except that a suit was brought against the road for some $28,000 and that the sale a most immediately following the filing of the claim, on a confessed judgment for the amount named.

The meeting of the Alumni Association of the Normal School on Thursday last was well attended. Prof. Waller, President, occupied the chair. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. A. Garman, President; J. P. Welsh, Vice President; Miss Ida Turnbach, Recording Secretary; Miss May Wells, Corresponding Secretary; Myron Low, Treasurer; W. M. Cleaver, O. B. Wells, Geo. E. Elwell, B. P. Vannatta, Miss Agnes Buckingham, Executive Committee. A good practical speech was made by Mr. Bruce Wells, orator of the day, on the profession of teaching, and Miss Edith Barton, essayist, read a very interesting paper, entitled "Weaving." Mr. H. Sharpless was elected orator for the next year, and Miss Dora Marr, essayist. At three o'clock the association repaired to the Central Hotel, where dinner was served. Great credit is due Geo. H. Brown and wife, for the elegant repast provided for the occasion. The tables were loaded with all sorts of delicacies, which were very tastefully arranged, making the table present a most attractive appearance. Ninety-one persons participated in the dinner. Professor Waller presided, and responded to the sentiment, "The Normal School." Col. Samuel Knorr spoke for the Trustees, and Mr. Harrison for the class of 1881. At about 5 o'clock the dinner ended, and all present went away feeling that the afternoon had passed very pleasantly.

The Market Street store of Moyer Bros., has been closed and both the drug and express business transferred to their new and handsome establishment on Main Street. This fact should be borne in mind by their numerous customers, who will find at the new store every convenience and facility for the prompt and satisfactory transaction of business. june 24 4-w

We find the following complimentary notice of our townsman, Mr. W. H. Jacoby, in the Lycoming Chronicle of last week. We print the article not as especially advocating Mr. Jacoby's claim to re-election, but as an act of courtesy to an old and esteemed friend.

"We are pleased to notice by the public papers of Columbia county, that our old Democratic friend, and former fellow journalist, the Hon. Williamson H. Jacoby, of Bloomsburg, is again a candidate for Register and Recorder of that county; and we have no doubt of his renomination and election. Mr. Jacoby is a practical printer, and was a long time the editor of the Star of the North, served several terms in the Legislature, and was a brave volunteer soldier in the late war of the rebellion; always an active Democrat and public spirited gentleman. He has held the position of Register and Recorder for several terms, always discharging the duties of his office with honesty and fidelity, and as this is an office of record and transcript for coming time, it is good policy to retain in it an efficient and faithful chief head, such as Mr. J. has proven himself to be, and the noble Democracy of old Columbia will do a sensible thing for themselves and meet out simple justice to a war-scarred veteran by giving him a renomination and a triumphant election in November.

CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER.

EDS. COLUMBIAN: Since my name has been announced as a candidate for County Treasurer, subject to the rules of the Democratic party of this county, I have been repeatedly urged to depart from my intention not to travel for votes. I still adhere to my first decision not to travel. I hold that no man should expect any office who is not competent to discharge the duties of the office himself, and that simply desiring an office does not entitle one to it. Capability and integrity are necessary qualifications, but have persons desiring office, earned the right to ask it? Being a Democrat is a good thing, but laboring for the party is better, not simply and only when there is prospect of one's self or friends getting place, but at all times and under all circumstances. It has repeatedly been said to me, "You ought to work for the nomination." My reply has been, I have always worked for the party, privately, publicly, at home and on the stump, bearing my own expenses, first, last and all the time, just as any Democrat who is one from principle, should do. Democrats, I should like the office. If you do not see fit to give it to me, give it and all your other offices to, the kind of men I have described, and I will work for them.

Respectfully,
E. M. TEWKSBURY.

"THE CYCLOPEDIA WAR."

The Cyclopedia War and the Literary Revolution are working wonderful and happy results for the readers of books and searchers after knowledge. The great "Library of Universal Knowledge," is announced to be completed ready for delivery to purchasers, the early part of July. It is probably the largest and most important literary work this country and the century have seen. It is based upon Chambers' Encyclopedia, the last London edition of which is reprinted entire as a portion of its contents, a large corps of American editors and writers adding thereto, a vast amount of information upon about 15,000 subjects in every department of human knowledge. Chambers' Encyclopedia, whose distinguished merit is universally known, is the laborious product of the ripest British and European scholarship, but being a work of foreign production it has been naturally deficient in its adaptation to the wants of American readers. In this new form it is most thoroughly Americanized, and becomes at once the largest and most complete encyclopedia in the field, at a mere fraction of the cost of any similar works which have preceded it, containing about 10 per cent more matter than Appleton's Encyclopedia, at less than one-fifth its cost, and 20 per cent more than Johnson's Cyclopedia at a little more than one-fourth its cost.

The superlative value and importance of this great Encyclopedia, however, lies especially in the fact that it is brought within the reach of every one who aspires after knowledge and culture. It is really a library of universal knowledge. It brings a liberal education easily within the reach of every plow-boy. Every farmer and every mechanic owes it to himself and to his children that such a cyclopedia shall henceforward form a part of the outfit of his home. To the intelligent man in every walk of life a Cyclopedia is indispensable. It is issued in various styles, in 15 large beautiful octavo volumes, varying in price from $15 for the edition in cloth, to $25 for the edition in full library sheep binding. Liberal discounts, even from these extraordinary prices are allowed to clubs, and the publishers, besides, propose during the next two months to distribute $10,000 cash in special rewards to persons who forward clubs of five, ten or more subscribers. The American Book Exchange, 764 Broadway, New York, are the publishers, who will send sample pages and full particulars free on request.

SECTION 3. SECTION 4. It shall be the duty of the head of every family in which a case of disease of the character above stated exists, to fasten and maintain above his front door or other conspicuous place, a red cloth or flag, not less than two feet square, under penalty of ten dollars, and any member of the Board of Health may, in default thereof, cause the said cloth or paper to be fixed, and maintained during the existence of the disease.

SECTION 5. No person dying of any of the diseases aforesaid, shall be removed from the place of his or her death for burial, or be buried, except between the hours of ten o'clock p. m., and three o'clock a. m., unless upon the written permission of a member of the Board of Health. Every person so removing or burying, except between the hours aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for the use of the Town, the sum of twenty-five dollars.

SECTION 6. It shall be the duty of the head of every family to cause each member of the family, or person resident in the house, to be examined by the family physician, or such physician as the Board of Health shall appoint, and upon the direction or recommendation of the examining physician, cause each, or any person there resident, to be vaccinated; and it shall be the duty of every physician practising in this Town to report every case of refusal to comply with his direction or recommendation relative to vaccination, to the Council, if in session, or to some one of the Board of Health, and thereupon the Board of Health shall authorize a competent physician to proceed to vaccinate every person thus reported as refusing.

Secretary.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE.

The undersigned being appointed delegates to attend commencement exercises and election of trustees at the State College, and thinking that a partial report of same would be interesting to at least a portion of your readers, we submit the same. The meeting was called to order by electing J. F. Weaver, of Centre county, President and Cyrus Gordner of Clearfield, and F. B. Hartman, of Columbia county, as Secretaries. Four trustees were to be elected for three years, and two for one year, caused by one death and one resignation. J. H. Orvis, of Centre; V. E. Piolett, of Bradford; John Hartman, of Columbia, and Charles S. McCormick, of Clinton, were elected for three years; J. N. Banks, of Indiana, and T. E. Sickler, of Chester for one year. James Miles, of Erie, was elected a trustee by the Alumni.

The principal income of the College is derived from the proceeds of the sale of the public lands donated to the State by the general government for college purposes. The State holds these proceeds in trust, for which it has given the college its bond for $500,000, on which it pays interest at the rate of six per cent.

Trustees.—The control of the institution and its financial management are vested in a Board of Trustees, consisting of twenty-three members. The ex officio members are eight in number, and include official representatives of the interests of the Commonwealth, of agriculture, of the mechanic arts, and of general education. Of the other fifteen members, one-third are elected annually, at the college, on the Wednesday before the Friday next preceding the Fourth of July. One of these trustees is elected by the alumni of the college, and the other four by a body of electors, composed of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society, the Managers of the Franklin Institute of Pennsylvania, three representatives duly chosen by each county agricultural society in this Commonwealth, which shall have been organized at least three months preceding the time of election, and three representatives not exceeding one in each county of the Commonwealth, which shall have for its principal object the promotion and encouragement of the mining and manufacturing interests of the Commonwealth, and the mechanic and useful arts, and which shall, in like manner, have been organized at least three months preceding the time of election."

The board thus constituted holds two regular meetings yearly, one in January, the other during commencement week. In the interval between its meetings, regular and special, its current business is transacted by an executive committee.

Location.—The institution is situated in the village of State College, Centre county, nearly twelve miles south-west of Bellefonte, and about equi-distant from the extreme parts of the State.

The building is a plain and substantial structure of magnesian limestone, situated on a pleasant rise of ground, and is two hundred and forty feet in length, eighty feet in average breadth and five stories in height, exclusive of attic and basement. It contains the public rooms—such as chapel, library, armory, cabinets, laboratories, society halls, and class-rooms—and a large number of dormitories.

Too much cannot be said in praise of this institution. The location is a beautiful one, being removed from all the evil surroundings that most colleges are heir to. The faculty is one of the best in the State. No charge is made for tuition. The course of study is optional with the student; taking in as it does, agriculture, natural science, chemistry, mathematics, physics, political, moral and mental science, English literature, modern languages and ancient as well, including music and military science and practice; having for this last practice four pieces of artillery and one hundred cadet rifles and equipments, all in excellent order. This farm contains proper, about four hundred acres. One hundred are used for campus, orchard, floral and shrubbery, one hundred for experimental farming and two hundred for general farming purposes.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT,

There is a dangerous counterfeit in circulation purporting to be "Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer." The strongest evidence of the great value of "Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer" is the fact that parties knowing its efficacy try to imitate it. Each bottle of the genuine has a "fac simile" of the signature of "O. E. Becker"—the manufacturer—blown in the glass; and the "Restorer" is as clear and harmless as water, while it possesses all the component properties necessary to restore life, vigor, growth, and color to the hair. Purchase only from responsible parties. Each bottle warranted. C. N. Crittenton, New York City, Wholesale Agent. oct. 22, 80-tf are undoubtedly the cheapest and most durable fence made, is not affected by fire, wind or flood, does not cause snow drifts, takes fewer posts and stock cannot push it down. Our wire is four pointed, is made of two strands of number 12 best galvanized steel wire twisted together just enough to allow for contraction and expansion in Summer and Winter, barbs are fastened every seven inches. The use of barbed wire is no longer an experiment, as last year over one hundred thousand miles were put up. We believe our wire to be the best and cheapest now manufactured because it is made of the best steel wire and runs 15 feet to the pound having the greatest strength and visibility with the least weight of any made. Put up on spools of about 100 rods weighing about 100 pounds. Price per pound 11 cents by the spool, less quantities 11½ cents per pound.

BARBED WIRE

Book Notices.

ECLECTIC MAGAZINE.—The July number of the Eclectic begins a new volume and is embellished with a very beautiful steel engraving, entitled "Ophelia." This engraving is a companion-piece to "Marguerite," which appeared in the January number, and which has been universally pronounced the finest and most attractive picture that ever appeared in the magazine. "Ophelia" is not inferior in either interest of subject or skill in execution.

As regards the literary contents the number is unusually rich, containing about twenty five articles, many of them of first rate interest and importance. The list is as follows: "Earl of Beaconsfield;" "Bimetallism," by Prof. W. Stanley Jevons; "The 'Sunbeam' in a Storm: an Extract from Mrs. Brassey's Diary;" "Fortunes of Literature under the American Republic," by George E. Woodberry; "Babies and Science;" "Tract XC. and its Consequences," by James Anthony Froude; "Sonnet on the Deaths of Thomas Carlyle and George Eliot," by Algernon Charles Swinburne; "Rambles Among Books; II., Autobiography;" "The Permanence of Continents," by J. Starkie Gardner, F. G. S.; "Kith and Kin," a novel, by Jessie Fothergill, chapters XIV. to XVI.; "On Novels and Novel-makers," by an Old Novelist;" "The Love of the Past;" "The Origin of Religion Considered in the Light of the Unity of Nature," by the Duke of Argyll; "Thackeray as a Poet;" "A Story of the White Czar;" "William Blake," by Frederick Wedmore; "Lost;" "What is a Molecule?" "The Morality of the Profession of Letters," by Robert Louis Stevenson; "One Year in a German Cookery School;" "Presages of Approaching Ill;" "Girton and Newnham Colleges for Women;" "Memory's Song;" Literary Notices; Foreign Literary Notes; Science and Art; and Miscellany.

Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms, $5 per year; single copy, 45 cents; Trial subscription for three months, $1.

Harper's Magazine for July is an interesting number. Mrs. Champney contributes a charming description of Oporto and the Oporto Vineyards, with beautiful illustrations. Mrs. Annie Howells Frechette describes the life of Lord Lorne and the Princess Louise at Rideau Hall—giving all those details in which the public has a legitimate interest. This article is illustrated with excellent portraits of the Marquis and his royal consort, and with interior views of Rideau Hall never before published. T. B. Aldrich contributes a delightful article—or rather the first part of an article—entitled "A Day in Africa:" a description of one day's adventures in Tangier, with fine illustrations from drawings by H. B. and J. C. Jones. Samuel Adams Drake's "White Mountains" series, illustrated by W. H. Gibson, is continued E. Mason contributes a paper on "Old Dutch Masters"—including Douw, Metzu, and Mieris, with portraits, and engravings from their paintings. Asa H. Waters gives an interesting biographical sketch of Thomas Blanchard, the inventor of the eccentric lathe, with a portrait. A patriotic poem by Julia C. R. Dorr, entitled "The Parson's Daughter," is finely illustrated by Fredericks; and Mr. Abbey is represented by another of his characteristic full-page illustrations of Herrick's poems.

George H. Holden contributes a sketch entitled "Hawthorne among his Friends," containing a characteristic and hitherto unpublished letter written by Hawthorne to his friend William B. Pike. The article contains other novel and interesting matter.

Among the especially timely articles are "Railroads in Mexico," by F. E. Prendergast; and "A Bicycle Era," by Edward Howland. Dr. S. Austen Pearce contributes a curious musical paper, entitled "The Music of the Spheres."

The serial Novels by Miss Woolson and Thomas Hardy are continued by Edward Everett Hale and Arthur Hastings.

Among the poems of the Number are two especially noticeable—"First Appearance at the Odeon," by the late James T. Fields; and "My June Boy," by Christine Chaplin Brush.

The Editorial Departments are, as usual, full of entertaining and instructive matter for all classes of readers.

THE CENTURY CO.—(FORMERLY SCRIBNER & CO.)

The name of the corporation formerly known as Scribner & Co. (publishers of "Scribner's Monthly," "St. Nicholas," "The Spiritual Songs Series" of hymn and tune books, "Songs for the Sanctuary," etc.) has now been changed to the Century Co. The title of "Scribner's Monthly" will become "The Century," with the next volume. "St. Nicholas" is slightly changed as to its subtitle, being now "St. Nicholas," an Illustrated Magazine for Young Folks. The July numbers of these magazines are the first to bear the new corporate imprint.

"Scribner" for July contains a paper of special and timely interest, "The People's Problem," in which the writer takes the ground that the time has come for the people of this country to exercise their right to "alter the government."

Besides a wealth of literary and illustrated matter, there are also, in this number, the concluding chapters, of two brilliant novelettes, "Madame Delphine," by George W. Cable (begun in May), and "A Fearful Responsibility," by W. D. Howells (begun in June). The May, June and July numbers, containing these two complete novelettes are offered for $1.00.

On the 25th of June was published the July number of "St. Nicholas," containing many brilliant features for vacation-time, including chapters of two capital serials for boys by Rossiter Johnson and W. Stoddard; "How to Stock and Keep a Fresh-Water Aquarium;" a full-page portrait of Dengremont, the boy violinist; "Stories of Art and Artists," with some exquisite reproductions, etc.

Price of Scribner's Monthly, $4.00 a year; 35 cents a number. "St. Nicholas," $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Sold everywhere.

HOW TO SAVE.

All men and women who work hard with mind or body are subject to periodical attacks of biliousness, which may end in disordered kidneys or liver and dangerous illness. A 50 cent or $1.00 bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic will keep these organs active, and by preventing the attack save you much sickness, loss of time and great expense. Many families are kept in perfect health by using the Tonic when spring or fall sickness threatens. Delay at such times means danger.—Detroit Press. See other column.

Commercial Candor.

"Did you ever observe," said Colonel Gilhooly to Major Spilkins, as they meandered down Galveston Avenue, "did you ever observe, Major, how difficult it is to get a straightforward answer, a plain yes or no, from people generally."

"I don't think I ever did."

"Well, sir," continued Gilhooly, "I'll bet two schooners of beer that we can go into a dozen stores and ask if they have got certain things, and if they have not got them, the storekeeper will not say so, plainout, in one single instance."

Spilkins investigated his clothing, and finding two car tickets, said it was a bet.

Then they strolled into a French or Italian fruit store; and Gilhooly asked:

"Have you a green watermelon for sale?"

"Watermelon!" exclaimed the astounded foreigner, "ziz is ze wintair season."

"I didn't ask you for any meteorological intelligence. Anybody who pays ten dollars a cord for wood is apt to suspect that summer is fading away; besides, I've got an almanac at home. Have you got a green watermelon?"

"Here is ze orange, ze banana, ze apple."

"Don't want any lessons in botany. Have you got a green watermelon?"

"Ze green watermelon is not ripe yet."

"I didn't ask whether it was ripe or not; I merely asked you if you had one; but come, Spilkins, let's go. He will give us a history of the French Revolution before he answers the question. Let's meander."

The next place was a millinery establishment.

"Madam," said Gilhooly, "have you a fried mule for sale?"

The lady got as read as a turkey gobbler, and craning her neck out she said:

"Sah?"

"Have you a fried mule in your elegant establishment?"

"I've got a husband, and brothers, sir, who protect me from insult."

"I didn't ask for your pedigree, ma'am. Ive got one of my own. There is no insult intended. I merely asked a civil question."

"I've got a husband. John! Oh John!"

"No need of calling him, ma'am. If you will say that he is mule, you needn't produce him. We will take your word for it."

"John! Oh, John! come quick; here are two galoots insulting me."

"Let's go," said Spilkins. "I'll pass an appropriation to pay for the beer."

"You might as well," responded Gilhooly, "for you won't get an answer straight out. If you go into a drug store and ask for a cranberry pie, or some baled hay, or a copy of Pope's Essay on Man, or an accordeon, they will spring some new liver encourager on you, or a box of bunion eradicator."

And they went and got the beer.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters, that makes pure rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me as you observe." Read of it.—Cairo Bulletin.

LATEST FROM MAINE.

Lock's Mill's, Oxford co., Me.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland:

Gents:—On the 22nd of November, 1879, our spool mill at this place, 50x64, two stories high, was totally consumed by fire, in which there was a large quantity of spool lumber, spools and blocks, all seasoned. The fire burned for three and a half days. We had one of your safes in our mill and Tuesday morning following, eighty hours after the fire, it was too hot to handle, being covered with burning blocks. Some time after it was opened and the contents were in a good state of preservation, not a book or paper being destroyed. I am satisfied with your safes and have purchased another, and can cheerfully recommend them to any one wishing to secure their valuables from being destroyed by fire.

Yours truly, I. G. TRIPP.

TREMENDOUS TEST.

Roasting Thirty Hours in a Bed of Red Hot Coals.

Corning, N. Y., January 6, '81.

Morris & Ireland, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—On the night of the fire in our village on the 26th ult., I had in use one of your No. 5 Safes. I am pleased to inform you, after the floor gave way it fell into the cellar, into a heap of burning coal, where it roasted for thirty hours. Our citizens and myself gave up the hope of anything being saved in it. On being taken from the ruins I was happily disappointed to find my cash, vouchers and other articles of value perfectly preserved. The combination works well now. I am satisfied your new and improved work, one of which, a No. 20, I have ordered of your agent to-day, will afford absolute protection in any fire.

Truly Yours, E. S. BARNES.

STILL AHEAD.

Rochester, N. H., Dec. 10, '80.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland:

Dear Sirs:—In the disastrous fire which took place in this town Nov. 26, the Morris and Ireland safe in my store was subjected to a severe test, being thrown into the cellar and a huge mass of debris fell upon it, and it was in the ruins some two days. I take pleasure in informing you that upon excavation it was opened without trouble and the contents were found to be uninjured. I cheerfully recommend your safe and should I want another I should certainly purchase one from you.

Yours truly, G. W. HOWE.

STILL ANOTHER.

From the Great Fire in Troy, New York.

Troy, N. Y., December 11, 1879.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland, Boston:

Gentlemen:—After witnessing the charred books out of the safes opened, also one of my own which was another make, which was lost in the heat of the fire like the No. 6 lately purchased of you, which was in the fire over forty-eight hours, and had to be continually played on during Monday night, as it was completely surrounded with burning muslins and other inflammable material, on opening it in the ruins Tuesday afternoon, I was pleased to find the contents, books, papers and money were all preserved in a remarkably good condition. With this proof of the fire qualities of your safe we have given your agent an order for one No. 8 safe.

Yours respectfully, DAVIS & CO.

THE GREAT

BOSTON FIRE.

JANUARY, 1880.

Morris & Ireland's Safes Again Triumphant—Messrs. Rice, Kendall & Co's. Large Safe Reveals Its Valuable contents Intact, after being subjected to intense heat for One Hundred and Thirty Hours.

Boston, January 2, 1880.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland, Boston:

Gents:—On the night of December 28, last, the building occupied in part by us at No. 91 Federal street, and which was four stories high and about 200 feet deep, caught fire and was destroyed, with all its contents, consisting of a very large stock of paper, Book Binders' materials and other merchandize. While several other large buildings adjoining ours were burned at the same time, the flames were extinguished the following day, but our stock continued to burn for days thereafter. After a delay of 130 hours we were able to have our safe dug out from the ruins and opened, and were pleased to find all the contents well preserved. The safe contained our most valuable books, papers, policies, etc., and we now feel sure that our judgment was correct in buying one of your safes, which we decided to do after knowing the wonderful record of your safes in the great Boston fire of '72. We regard the protection of your safe as most remarkable, and this fire is a guaranty of its security to those who may wish to purchase.

Yours very truly, RICE, KENDALL & CO.

Also a Communication from Ex-Governor Alex. Rice.

Boston, January 2, 1880.

MESSRS MORRIS & IRELAND.

Gents: I have made careful examination of the contents of the safe purchased of you some years since by the firm of Rice, Kendall & Co., and which was subject to the test of enormous heat in the great fire of last Sunday night. I regard the security of the safe under the circumstances as most remarkable. None of its contents were burned, nor were any of them so injured by heat as to be materially damaged. I should commit any securities to your safe hereafter with additional confidence. With great respect, yours very truly,

Alexander H. Rice.

THE LATEST YET.

BUT THE SAME RESULT.

So. Norridgewock, Me., Feb. 1, 1881.

Messrs Morris & Ireland, Boston Mass.:

The safe I bought of you last October was in a two-story wooden building, which burned Jan. 26. The building took fire in the night, and the safe, building and its contents, fell into the cellar upon a pile of dry wood, making a hot fire which lasted for ten hours. The outside of the safe was heated red hot. It melted the handle and dial off the door. The contents consisted of watches, jewelry, silverware, books papers &c., all of which came out in good condition. Papers lying against the inside of the safe were not injured. The safe shows for itself what it is, and I feel well satisfied with what it has done. Please write what you can allow for it toward a new one, and oblige,
